Disappointed Ones Renew Their Protests Against New Civil Service Law.

"Wish you a happy and prosperou New Year" is a greeting that might seem a little strange at this season of the year, and only cause one all the more to berate the unjust manipulator of the weather instruments, but it was heard frequently among the army of civil service employes in Washington yesterday afternoon.

"I hope to have a happy year, but I'm not sure that it's going to be as prosperous for me as I had anticipated, is the sense of the average reply.

Navy Promotions Announced.

Yesterday being the close of the fiscal year in Government circles, it was an important one to the clerks who had worked faithfully and hard in anticipation of promotions. As usual, most of them were disappointed, although few lists were complete yesterday, and many will not know their fate until Monday, the first day of the new year. Disappointment was particularly in evidence among clerks in the Navy and War Departments, more noticeably in the former, which gave the Navy clerks the opportunity to repeat the cry that promotions come slowly and far between in the department where salaries are lowest. This only served to make stronger the protest against the new civil service resolution and law passed by Congress, making it impossible for a clerk to make a change till he had served in one department three years, and impossible to repeat the examina-
